Thoughts from a Shepherd—John Keller

A grateful heart-----

Is easy to say when all is well and the light is all around us!
Can we lose our gratitude by neglect, by overconfidence, by pride?
How do we cultivate a grateful heart?
Is a grateful heart a natural instinct?

A grateful heart-----

Is difficult to feel in shattered times of our lives.
Can we create a grateful heart--can we ask our intellect to restore a broken heart?
A broken heart is real and painful—we have all had one and you may now.
How do we heal a broken heart?

A grateful heart-----

What is the center of our gratitude?
Our life, our health, our comfort?
Or does God our Father teach us what a grateful heart looks like?
Is it about surrender?

Our Savior may say: “Come on and let Me Love you”-----
the phrase is..
Concise and yet full.
An invitation, a reward, a peace, It has to do with that Grace,
Surrender and with the Greatest Love ever known to man!

Our God loves us when we are struggling in the dark and smiling in the light
Let us hold fast and...
May the Lord of All be present and may we offer up our heart to Him, always.

Colossians 3:15-17
